Colorado Landmark, Realtors Locally owned boutique office is a leader in Boulder County's luxury home market

By L.L. Charles, At Home

At Colorado Landmark, Realtors, they like to say that, “Every Home is a Landmark.”

It's true. Your home is a landmark in its community and in the life you live... and certainly, buying your home is a landmark occasion.

Since Joel Ripmaster founded the firm in 1977, Boulder County homebuyers have trusted in Colorado Landmark for personal, attentive real estate services and flawless transactions. “We are an independent, boutique real estate office,” says Ripmaster. “We have become known as the luxury leader in Boulder,” she says, noting that the company is (by a significant margin) the top-selling real estate office in Boulder County this year for homes $2M and up.

Luxury starts with exceptional service

Every Colorado Landmark real estate agent is going to ask you some version of this question: “How can we help make your next Boulder real estate transaction easier?”

Whether you are a buyer or a seller, you will appreciate Colorado Landmark's one-on-one approach, designed to market each unique property skillfully for a seamless experience from beginning to end. That's what white-glove real estate service is all about: It establishes trust, matches qualified buyers with sellers, and removes the barriers to a successful transaction.

Boulder area properties to an international audience. These affiliations give us access to the resources of one of the most highly esteemed real estate networks in the industry - so we are truly local AND global,” says agent Jennifer Fly.

You don't have to be in the luxury market to enjoy the benefits of working with Colorado Landmark Realtors, though, because the company brings the same high level of quality service developed for high-end homes to each of their properties.
